Grievance Redressal & Whistleblower Policy

Category	Conduct
Policy Owner	Human Resources & Legal
Effective Date	January 1, 2026
Next Review Date	January 1, 2028
Applies To	All employees, contractors, and interns of Orbis

1. Purpose

Orbis is committed to a workplace where concerns can be raised safely and resolved fairly. This Policy sets out how employees raise workplace grievances, how suspected wrongdoing is reported, and the protection available to those who speak up in good faith.

2. Scope — Grievance or Disclosure?

Raise a Grievance	Make a Whistleblower Disclosure
Workload, working conditions, leave or shift disputes; interpersonal conflict; disagreement with a management decision; pay or benefits queries.	Fraud, theft or misappropriation; bribery or corruption; falsification of records; breach of law or the Code of Conduct; data privacy violations; concealment of any of these.

Complaints of sexual harassment are handled exclusively under the POSH process set out in the Work Policy and are not processed as ordinary grievances.

3. Grievance Procedure

Grievances should be raised as close to the source as possible and are escalated only if unresolved.

Stage	Raised With	Response Time
Stage 1 — Informal	Reporting manager	5 working days
Stage 2 — Formal	HR Business Partner, in writing	10 working days
Stage 3 — Appeal	Grievance Committee	15 working days

The Grievance Committee comprises the Head of Human Resources, a Department Head independent of the matter, and one employee representative. Its decision at Stage 3 is final within Orbis.

4. Whistleblower Disclosures

Disclosures may be made to the Ethics Officer by email, by post marked "Private and Confidential", or anonymously through the ethics hotline. A disclosure should describe what happened, who was involved, when it occurred, and any supporting evidence. Employees are not expected to investigate or to prove wrongdoing before reporting.

- Disclosures are acknowledged within 5 working days.
- A preliminary assessment determines whether a full investigation is needed.
- Investigations are ordinarily completed within 60 days.
- The outcome is communicated to the discloser to the extent legally permitted.

5. Confidentiality and Anonymity

The identity of a discloser is disclosed only to those conducting the investigation, and only where necessary. Anonymous disclosures are accepted and investigated so far as the information provided allows, though anonymity may limit how thoroughly a matter can be pursued.

6. Protection Against Retaliation

Orbis prohibits retaliation of any kind against a person who raises a concern in good faith, or who assists an investigation. Retaliation includes dismissal, demotion, exclusion, an unjustified change in duties or rating, or any form of harassment. Retaliation is itself treated as serious misconduct under the Code of Conduct and may result in termination. Protection applies even where a concern raised in good faith is not ultimately substantiated.

7. Deliberately False Reports

A report made in good faith that proves unfounded carries no consequence. A report known by its author to be false, or made to harass a colleague, is a disciplinary matter.

8. Records and Reporting

All grievances and disclosures are logged with a unique reference, the date raised, the stage reached and the outcome. Records are retained for seven years and handled as sensitive personal data under the Data Privacy Policy. The Ethics Officer reports summary statistics — never individual identities — to the Board twice a year.
